On December 1, 2017 licensing requirements take effect for residential builders in Alberta. Going forward, builders will need to be licenced in order to obtain building permits for new homes and to register new homes.

Provisional licences will be given to builders who have been active in Alberta over the last two years and who have a good track record. This is a temporary licence that will allow builders to continue building, it will be business as usual for them. Full licence applications will also be available online on December 1.
